Every time I read about high-speed rail it seems agriculture and politicians are against it. Why? I pay my taxes and I want those taxes returned to me in the San Joaquin Valley in terms of jobs and infrastructure. Why is it so important for the few to hold back the progress of everyone? I see all the roads being expanded, which I support, and I never hear one word from agriculture or politicians about it except to take credit.

Maybe our leaders need to get their priorities in place. I vote, too.
