District 1 in Fresno has a strong, intelligent, knowledgeable candidate running for City Council.

Her name is Esmeralda Soria and she has an impressive background. She grew up in the San Joaquin Valley, did her undergraduate work at UC Berkeley, served as a White House intern, and obtained her law degree at UC Davis. Esmeralda has taught at San Joaquin College of Law.

I talked with Esmeralda when she was canvassing my neighborhood. She answered my questions without hesitation or equivocation -- something that doesn't happen often with political candidates.

I liked her ideas and plans to improve air quality and restore neighborhood policing to improve our safety.

Fresno has only had a handful of women on the City Council. I think it is time to have a woman represent District 1.
