The Craig School of Business at Fresno State earned an extension to its accreditation by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

Less than 5 percent of the world's business programs have earned the accreditation, amounting to just 84 other colleges and universities.

Founded in 1916, the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business is the longest serving global accrediting body for business schools that offer undergraduate, master's and doctoral degrees in business and accounting.

The Craig School of Business has been accredited since 1958, when Fresno State became the third university in California to receive the accreditation.

The Craig School of Business, established in 1928 as the School of Commerce, offers six bachelor's degrees and a master's in business administration degree with an online version of the MBA coming in August.
