How amusing that the new Downtown Business Partnership president was introduced to Bee readers with a photograph taken at the very place he was hired to destroy. Apparently, despite his raison d'être, he found the most interesting photo op in downtown Fresno to be on our award-winning walking street and urban art park, the Fulton Mall.

I couldn't agree more! After all, if the mayor succeeds in laying down asphalt on the mall, his next photo shoot will be in front of a car. But if he — and we all — are lucky, and the preservationist lawsuit filed to halt the mayor's bulldozers prevails, he can continue to take awesome photos on the mall with no worries about getting run over or choking on particulates. Next time bring the kids.
