

Where's the engineering expertise?

January 26, 2015

I have not seen much on the story about expansion of Fresno's water system that included information from any of the local civil engineering firms or Fresno State's engineering department.

I worked for a civil engineering company in Madera for 30-plus years. A combination of recharge and phased surface-water treatment would be a good possibility. Why is there no comment from civil engineering firms, such as Provost & Pritchard, Blair Church & Flynn or Kleinfelder. Just look in the yellow pages.

There are larger firms in the Bay Area or Los Angeles, if you feel the need. I would like to hear what some of the local experts on water treatment and delivery and sewage, a related subject along with storm drain management, have to say. Let's hear a lot more on the subject.
