

Clovis website aims to lure, grow businesses

By Bethany Clough
bclough@fresnobee.com

The city of Clovis has launched a new website designed to help businesses grow, start up and move to the city.

The site, www.clovis4business.com has information and links about training opportunities, government incentives, access to capital, assistance with regulations and other topics.

For businesses considering a move to Clovis it includes lists of available properties and buildings, demographic data and other information useful in choosing a location.

The site is part of an economic development strategy adopted by the City Council last year to be business friendly and attract new businesses.

Bethany Clough: (559) 441-6431, @BethanyClough