

Stop building homes

I was driving by another new housing development going up in Clovis and saw a truck watering the dirt!

Hello-o-o, we are in a drought. Why are we still building so many new homes when there is so little water?

If there was a housing shortage, it would be different. There are hundreds of already existing houses for sale in Clovis. The value of those homes are being lowered because of the plethora of new developments and their “little down-move in” terms.

Does Clovis realize how many of these homes go into foreclosure or pre-foreclosure due to these terms? Check out the statistics for the existing homes for sale. A lot are in foreclosure.

Honestly, where do the boards of supervisors think all these people are coming from to warrant building new homes all over Fresno and Madera counties during our drought conditions?
